RSV Completes Construction of Columbia Bank's First Clark County Branch

Bank is the first tenant in downtown Vancouver's Angelo Building

VANCOUVER, Wash. – RSV Building Solutions recently completed construction of Columbia Bank's first Clark County branch located in the Angelo Building in downtown Vancouver. The bank is the first tenant to open for business in the building, which was completed in July 2009. A grand opening event is scheduled for January 21, 2010.

"We selected RSV because they are a vital part of the local business community," said Mark Brandon, senior vice president at Columbia Bank. "Our decision to work with RSV paid off because they proved to be instrumental in the permitting process, they met our price point, and completed the entire project in just two months. We are delighted with the outcome."

The new 3,820-square-foot branch, which is located on the ground floor of the building, features a night deposit drop, an ATM, three teller stations, and a precast vault. Additionally, the branch includes office space for local and regional managers.

"We are excited to have Columbia Bank as a client and feel that their new space is a perfect fit for the prestigious Al Angelo building," said Ron Frederiksen, president of RSV. "As long-time friends of the Angelo family, we share their pride in this new building, which is a gem in downtown Vancouver."

Over the past 35 years, RSV has developed extensive tenant improvement expertise in the financial services industry, completing projects for local banks and credit unions.

Columbia Banking System, Inc. is headquartered in Tacoma and is the holding company of Columbia Bank, a Washington state-chartered full-service commercial bank. Columbia provides commercial banking services to small and medium-sized businesses, professionals and other individuals in Washington and Oregon.
